

Retailing program is instituted at OU; sales work in stores included

A new degree-program in retailing is being offered this fall at OU under the joint sponsorship of the Associated Retailers of Omaha and the university. The association has underwritten the cost of the new program for a three year period.

The retailing course has been designed primarily to provide competent young men and women with the educational background and the practical on-the-job experience which will enable them, upon graduation, to enter positions which offer many opportunities for advancement.

Classroom instruction for the program will be supplemented with work two days a week and during the holidays in member stores of the association. While on the job the students will receive pay based on the same scale as other store employees.

Candidates for the program will be selected on the basis of their performance on psychological, personality, and interest tests, achievement as shown by academic record and acceptability for retail employment.

Chairman of the new university department will be Hurford H. Davison of Chicago. Davison for eight years held executive positions with leading department stores in New York and Chicago. He holds a master's degree from Harvard.

In commenting on the new program, C. P. Swiler of Orchard and Wilhelm, chairman of the association's advisory board said, "We feel that more college graduates should be interested in retailing, the largest business in America. So we decided to do something about it."

Frank J. Barry of the Aquila, president of the association pointed out the many job opportunities in the retail field and predicted that those who take the four-year program at Omaha U will receive the kind of training that business wants today.

The World-Herald has offered $1,000 to be awarded in five $200 scholarships to the outstanding junior and senior students of the Division of Business Administration.

Retailing will become a department under the enlarged Division of Business Administration in the College of Applied Arts and Sciences. Dean Helmstadter announced that John W. Lucas, dean of students, will head the division.

Six hold 'A' average through school year

Digging ditches may be hard work, but plowing a furrow of straight A's for a whole school year is no easy task. Six university students did it last year.

Miss Alice Smith, registrar, announced that the following students maintained the straight A average: Freshmen, Thomas U. Townsend; Sophomores, Clark D. Fobes and Marion Heiser; Junior, Philip S. King and seniors, George DeWitt, and Margaret McMartin. One part-time student, Mrs. Frances H. Thompson, also received straight A's.

Bail bids welcome

See cut on page two

It is indeed a pleasure to welcome you to the university at the opening of the school year 1948-49. You are beginning another lap on your educational journey which I hope you will find to be interesting, enjoyable, and profitable.

Although volumes have been written about the purposes of education, we may summarize briefly by saying there are two major purposes. First, to enable each individual to develop to the maximum of his ability, and second, to produce a generation of people as good as (we hope better than) the present generation.

A university is a learning environment made up of many and varied activities and learning experiences which have been brought together in an attempt to enable individuals to achieve these purposes. Get acquainted with your environment and all that it has to offer you so that you may profit from it.

The major strength of a university is its faculty—the individuals who are responsible for transferring the heritage of the race to you, the students. Get acquainted with the faculty so that they may help you achieve your educational and professional goals.

My wish for you is that the school year 1948-49 will be the best you have yet experienced.

Adwers teaches heat plant care, operation

A class of North Dakota and Minnesota school custodians heard Jack Adwers, superintendent of Building and Grounds at the university, lecture during July, on the care and operation of heating plants.

The class was part of a three-day special school conducted in each state by the State Department of Vocational Training.

Humanities chairman does magazine article

The use of top-ranking students and leading citizens of the community to help with humanities instruction at the university is described in an article written by Dr. Wilfred Payne, chairman of the humanities, in the August issue of the Journal of General Education.

Dr. Payne will also publish a booklet describing examples of architectural styles in Omaha, which will be used in humanities instruction. The publication will reveal that a number of nationally known architects have designed several of Omaha's buildings.

Enrollment nears 1900 in day school

VA moves to 184

The Veterans Administration office has moved from room 281 to room 184 to be nearer to the Vocational Appraisal office, which is also on the first floor. Both offices keep records of veterans.

600 prep grads sign for classes

Registration of new students ends Oct. 2

After reaching a post war peak of over 2,000, registration at the university is leveling off.

Registrar Alice Smith reports that day-school enrollment will total about 1,900, or an approximate 10 percent drop. Complete figures will be available by the end of the week.

About 600 freshmen, nearly one-third of the total enrollment, have signed up for classes. There has been a slight decrease in both freshmen and veteran enrollments.

Registration is continuing throughout this week and next, with new students being accepted until Oct. 2.

Registration confusion has decreased along with the number of students, although long lines were evident throughout the lower hall and near the registrar's and business offices. Shortage of classroom space and lockers is expected to continue.

As an experiment, student counselors were used for the first time this year to expedite registration. Eight Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma members worked Wednesday through Saturday helping students fill out registration forms.

Guidance examinations will be given tomorrow and Friday for those new students who have not yet completed their registration. Night-school registration will also be tomorrow and Friday.

No Smoking above the first floor

There is to be absolutely no smoking above the ground floor in the university building. This rule was put into force this semester by the Omaha Fire Department and the university administration. Stairwell smoking is deemed a hazard because the stairways are the means of escape in case of fire.

Our promise....

Evidences of the university's "growing pains" can be seen all around.

The hill to the west of the football field is being readied to receive the first installment of the 10-year expansion program—the new Fieldhouse.

Inside the building, the fourth floor has been largely given over to housing the recently created Chemistry Department.

And down on the first floor the Home Economics Department is already well established in its new quarters, which are equipped with the very latest in ranges and refrigerators, even paring knives.

Yes, the university is girding itself for the task of handling an enrollment that has quadrupled since this building was opened ten years ago. And it is also looking forward to the years ahead, which will surely bring with them an increased interest in higher education by the people of this nation.

As the university continues to expand, its newspaper—the student's newspaper—should grow along with it. The paper should grow not only in a purely physical sense, but it should also become alive to and become equal to its larger moral responsibility. A responsibility it has to every member of the administration, faculty and student body of reporting the news completely and impartially.

And the task of accomplishing that goal is made more difficult as the university expands. As in a larger city where there are more and varied sources of news than in the small town, the larger university also offers a more fertile news field.

We will do the job of reporting that news as best we can, using our abilities and experience in the field of journalism to the fullest advantage.

We will make mistakes. But we hope that both we as individuals and the paper as a whole will profit by the mistakes and grow stronger because of them.

But sometimes a paper to be a good servant must do more than report the news. It also must guide and sometimes constructively criticize.

Let it be said now that the Gateway favors no individual or group, nor is it out to get anyone. We have no axes to grind. But, if we honestly believe that an individual or group, be it the administration or the student body, has acted in a manner which we judge is not in the best interests of the university, we shall speak out against that offender in the editorial columns of this newspaper.

The Gateway has its growing pains too. And we hope to accompany the university through the coming period of expansion, doing a job of reporting the period's happenings that will do both the university and the Gateway proud in the years to come.

Humanities assistants appointments made

Seven humanities fellows and an equal number of tutors will assist in humanities instruction this semester.

Dr. Wilfred Payne, chairman of the department, announced the appointment of Glenn Desmond, John Maddon, Phyllis Earp, William Farquhar, Nancy Lindberg, Leonard Oliver and Nancy Sturgess.

Tutors for the semester will be Mrs. Lane Axtell, Miss Sarah Lee Baird, Miss Frances Fuhrer, Mrs. Roger McBride, Mrs. William C. Ramsey, Jr., Miss Emily Reynolds and Mrs. Edward L. Sherwood.

Institute offers 34 job-training courses

Thirty-four job-training courses will be offered this fall in the university's division of Technical Institutes. Most of the instructors will be drawn from local business and industry.

A new bulletin announces the program, which will include stream-lined training in air conditioning, aircraft, building contract estimating, insurance, home-building, machine shop, plastics and radio. Registration for institute courses is September 23. Classes begin the week of September 27.

Dr. Milo Bail... at an old desk a new man.

Dr. Bail admires midwest attitude

The congeniality of Omahans and their sincere interest and respect for their municipal university are two things that have impressed Dr. Milo Bail, the university's sixth president.

The new president, who came from Butler University in Indianapolis to take office July 1, sees this section of the country as a comparatively new region that promises greater development.

Dr. Bail, himself, is a midwest product. He was born at Boonville, Mo., 49 years ago, and received his bachelor's degree from Missouri Valley College. He got his master's and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Iowa, where he has taught each summer since 1928.

OU's new retailing program is a part of the development he foresees in the future. A fan of distributive education, he would like to see the combination of education and actual work at the same time carried into other fields such as accounting, insurance and real estate.

Not forgetting the women, he is well satisfied with the university's four year home economics program and would like to see it open to all women in the city, regardless of their educational background, because of the necessity of planned homemaking.

The new president is a member of the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the National Association of School Administrators.

He is a member of the executive committee of the North Central Association, secretary of the association's commission on research and service, a member of the research group's steering committee and a member of the group's committee on current educational problems.

Weekly shows will be KOILed on Mondays

An important new step in the university's public relations setup was announced last week.

Starting next Monday evening the university will have a 15-minute weekly variety radio show on station KOIL. It will mark the first time the university has had a radio series.

The programs, which will be aired at 9:30 p. m., will deal with every phase of university life, from the Home Economic Department to the Athletic fields.

The weekly series is the joint brainchild of Robert Mossholder, director of the university's office of printing and information, and Virgil Sharpe, program director of KOIL. Sharpe is also president of the university's Alumni Association.

The station will supply the time and talent for the series free. Sharpe has been added to the university's information office on a part-time basis to handle the shows. Student talent will be used on several occasions throughout the series.

Mossholder has outlined a tentative schedule of programs for the series to carry through next June.

Bails in first show
Next week's opening show will have a "Get Acquainted with The Bails" theme. It will consist of a chatty, informal interview with Dr. and Mrs. Bail.

Next on the tentative docket is a Founders' Day show which will be a dramatic presentation of the history and development of the university.

Then will follow a round table type of program devoted to athletics, which will include an introduction of the coaching staff and a discussion of the expanding athletic program and the new Fieldhouse.

University students will get into the act in the next week's show. They will put on a preview of the Tom Tom Revue.

There will be special shows at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter in keeping with the theme of those days.

Indians roll past Wesleyan 12-0 to take opener of 1948 season

Tight defensive play pays off as record crowd watches OU romp

Wiren, Shober make 2 Omaha touchdowns

Omaha University's inspired football eleven proved a potent defense can produce a sustained offense as they whipped Nebraska Wesleyan 12-0 last Saturday night at Benson Stadium.

A crowd of 3,800 fans, one of the biggest in OU's history, saw the Indians' defensive maneuvers smother the heralded Plainsmen attack and spark two touchdowns.

Midway in the first quarter, Gene Cheeley booted out of bounds on the Wesleyan 21 yard line. After White tried the center for three yards, Mercer went back to kick. But Cliff Squires' bad center squirted out of Mercer's hands into the end zone.

Dusty Johnson, John Duffy and Bob Shober all dove for the ball with Shober finally recovering for the first OU six pointer. Gorman's try for point was wide and the Indians left the field at half time with a 6-0 lead.

A fourth down Wesleyan gamble set up the other O U score in the fourth period. With less than a foot to go, the Plainsmen elected to run from deep in their territory. Mercer was stopped cold by a wall of tacklers and the Indians took possession of the ball on the Lincolnites 24 yard line.

On the first down, Cheeley went around right end for 6 yards and then rifled a pass to Archie Arvin to put the ball on the 2. Eli Legino ploughed to the one yard line and Jarring Johnny Wiren plunged for the score. John Jones' try for the point was low.

The Indians threatened again late in the fourth quarter when Wiren intercepted a Mercer pass on the Wesleyan 30 and scampered to the 10 before being driven out of bounds.

Two Arenas passes were incomplete and an attempted field goal by Jones was short to give the Capital city boys possession.

Coach Bus Knight's squad got their best scoring opportunity early in the second quarter. A bad fourth down center by OU gave Wesleyan the ball on their opponent's 44 yard line.

Ken White gained 11 yards on three plays and then tossed a pass to Bob Ketterer which gained to the 28. On the next play, Chuck Gordon bulled his way through the Indian line for a first down on the 21.

Wiren intercepted a third down pass to end the threat after "Whitey" Jones broke through the line twice to set Plainsmen back ten yards.

The rough play of both teams helped produce many fumbles and intercepted passes which marred an otherwise good game. But the Indians gave notice that they are going to be a tough team to beat in their remaining games.

There was no real standout in the OU line as everyone played good, hard football. Bob Shober, who blocked two punts, the wiry Jones and Tackles Harouff and Duffy kept the Wesleyan ball

Links Tourney opens Saturday

Golf Coach John Campbell announced last week that there will be an all-school golf tournament beginning September 18.

Any Omaha U student is eligible for entry. An eighteen-hole qualifying round will be played either next Saturday or Sunday at the Indian Hill golf course.

Entrants must play with two or three other qualifiers and the score cards must be signed by the other players and turned in to the Gateway Sports Department next Monday.

The sixteen low qualifying scores will then be entered in a match play tournament which will begin September 25. The pairings for the sixteen-man tourney will be posted on the bulletin board in the locker room.

Biggest marching band is forseen

"The band this year will be the largest in the history of the school," said V. J. Kennedy, band director for the University of Omaha. "However, enrollment is still open and anyone who owns a band instrument is more than welcome to join, regardless of his or her musical ability or major in school."

Several girls have enrolled in the band so far and all girls with musical ability are invited to join.

During the past two weeks, $1,000 has been spent on instruments and music. Mr. Kennedy said that he expects to place an order for new uniforms sometime during the coming year.

All band members will receive one credit hour per semester which may be substituted for physical education requirements. Band rehearsals will be on Tuesdays from 4 to 6 p. m.

Several programs have been scheduled for the band.

Training plane is gift to school from Klopp

The University of Omaha literally received a gift from heaven recently.

Robert Klopp, Omaha businessman gave the university a tandem Fairchild training plane. It will be used for instruction in the Division of Technical Institutes aircraft and engine school.

The plane was flown to the university from Lincoln by A. and E. student Ray Nelson. OU now owns more than six varieties of airplane engines.

Both day and evening training courses in aircraft mechanics and aircraft engine mechanics are available at the university. New classes, which are CAA-approved and begin Monday, prepare students for CAA examinations.

Aircraft courses are offered days, nights

Increased demand for aircraft workers has caused the Technical Institutes Division of the university to offer again both day and evening training courses in aircraft mechanics and aircraft engine mechanics.

New classes will begin each Monday. Applications should be filed now in the office of Dean C. W. Helmstadter, room 284. The CAA-approved courses prepare students for CAA examinations.

Indians to seek second triumph against Coyotes

Coach Lloyd Cardwell's football squad is due to run up against one of the toughest teams on its schedule this Friday night when they meet South Dakota University at Vermillion.

Line Coach Charley Brock and Assistant Football Coach Don Pflasterer scouted the Coyotes last Friday when they whipped a heavy Westmar club 53-0 at Vermillion. Both coaches agreed that OU will have its hands full when they meet Head Coach Harry Gamages's club.

Gamage is no newcomer to the coaching ranks. Before coming to South Dakota U, he was head football coach at Kentucky University.

Twenty-two letter winners were among the 63 men that reported for practice at the beginning of the season.

Among the 22 lettermen were four all-North Central Conference selections from last season. Leading last year's all-conference picks is Howard Blumhardt, a hard driving, fast running fullback who is a human battering ram.

Brock and Pflasterer had nothing but praise for Blumhardt.

Also in the backfield are Jack Van Arsdale, an agile ball runner and a good punter, Bob Arthur, Don Coutts, Merle Houck and Ronnie Brown. All of these men are fast and capable of running the ends while Blumhardt will soften up the middle of the line.

Up front, Gamage has Norm Bartholow and Gerald Krutsch, all conference guard and tackle. Both OU coaches liked the work of these two men.

Last year, the Gamage men won seven games, lost two and had no ties. They tied with Iowa State Teachers College for the North Central crown. The Coyote defeats were at the hands of College of the Pacific and Marquette, two non-conference foes.

Since Gamage's arrival at SD, his teams have won 25 conference games and lost an average of one conference game each year. He is assisted in his coaching duties by Dan Lennon as line coach, R. D. Richards as backfield coach, and John L. Johnson as assistant coach.

Steel on way for Fieldhouse

Hard-to-get steel for the new fieldhouse is on its way. University officials have been promised the steel will be here November 1.

The excavating done by The Hollingsworth Construction Company of Omaha was finished September 1. The Hollingsworth Company outbid four other companies for the job. The pouring of the concrete footings will be done next.

The field house, when finished, will accommodate 5,000 people. It will allow the university to stage all of its inside sports on the campus.

as examples: Tech High had an athletic banquet to welcome a new basketball coach. On hand to welcome the newcomers were Virg Yelkin and his football staff.

The local press and radio sports fraternity were invited to bring their notebooks, cameras, wire recorders and come out for the football team's open house.

Yes indeed, there's a sports revival going on at Omaha U.

Yelkin stirring OU sports pot as revitalized program moves into gear

There's a sports revival on at Omaha University.

Just a few years ago an Omaha U basketball team hit an all-time low for the school when it lost to a Benson Post American Legion team.

That was the time when they started calling the school West Side High. And that was just about right.

But there's a sports revival going on at Omaha U.

Over on the west hill they are pouring concrete for a fieldhouse which will cost approximately $500,000.00.

Down on the football field some 20 lettermen are matched by a larger group of promising newcomers. Greenhorns they call them.

Greenhorns like Bud Gibbons, all-city end at Tech last year, John Wiren, top notch back from South, or Joe Salerno, regular back on a once-beaten Drake University team three years ago . . . Just to start the list.

Cardie has a dangerous outfit all right. But take a glance at their schedule. It's by far the toughest in the school's history.

As an example, South Dakota University, next Friday's foe will open the season with the Huskers next year.

Probably the biggest share of responsibility for this athletic renaissance can go to Athletic Director Virg Yelkin.

He helped push the idea of having an athletic football banquet and inviting high school players from the Omaha area to attend. They came to the banquet in droves.

And 30 came back to Omaha U—to play football this fall.

Virg is the kind of guy that will get things done for Omaha U. Just toters in their own backfield most of the night.

John Wiren, running for the injured Freddie Abboud, was a pleasant surprise while Joe Arenas and Gene Cheeley lived up to advance predictions in Coach Lloyd Cardwell's backfield.

Sororities seek rushees favor

Rushees at Omaha University went through a spree of formal rush parties September 8-11. Traveling from Davey Jones' Locker to a Mexican bullfight, guests got a whiff of sea air and visions of handsome gauchos.

Kappa

Kappa went undersea to "Davey Jones' Locker" for their rush party Tuesday in the Crystal Room at the Rome Hotel.

Fish nets and sea shells as well as alligators, fish and a life size anchor carried out the deep sea theme. Candles in tallow covered holders added to the atmosphere.

Actives in pirate attire greeted the rushees preceding the entertainment.

The program was started with active Betty Bilunas in a medley at the piano. Betty ????

solo and two acrobats, at three and ten years old, performed for the group. Two girls did tap acts.

The marine atmosphere was highlighted in the refreshments with fish as the main dish.

Pi O

Rushees were entertained Wednesday night by the Pi O Navy at a yacht party. The El Chico Room at the Legion Club was crowded with girls in cotton dresses while active wore navy dresses to carry out the sea-going theme.

Buoys lettered with SS PI O decorated the room and signal flags of different colors hung from the ceiling. Favors for the pledges to be were honorable commissions in the Pi O Navy.

A sail boat was given as a prize after a get acquainted game. Joni Nickerson added to the swab jockey air by leading community singing with "Anchors Away" followed by sorority songs.

Actives presented their Ma-ie Day skit of "Bessie the Bartender's Daughter," a combination melodrama with a chorus background.

Hot dogs, cokes and potato chips were served by the actives for refreshments.

Gamma

Thursday night the Birchwood Club was converted into a vaudeville hall by the Gammas for entertaining rushees.

The probation theme and soft lights were stressed by candles in beer bottles standing in the center of red checkered table cloths. Root beer was served by pledge waiters complete with white gloves and straw skimmers.

Placards placed on an easel announced the melodrama with pantomime, the chorus line of two which turned out to be four, the four singing waiters and a Beatrice Kay satire.

Community singing of the sorority songs preceded refreshments of coffee and a light lunch.

As the evening ended, the actives presented their Gamma song for the rushees for final memories.

Sig Chi

Informality with a Gay Nineties theme was the keynote for the Sig Chi party Friday at Inspiration Lodge.

Ruffled garters decked with rosebuds were favors in an atmosphere of red checkered table cloths, tapers in modern tankards, a free lunch bar and picture panoramas of life in the Gay Nineties period.

Pantomiming old fashioned songs started the entertainment with the rushees judging the most original group. Prizes for the best performance were miniature oil lamps.

Active's entertainment for the rushees was a melodrama, a barbershop quartet called the "Lost Chords," a Sig Chi can can crous and "Frankie and Johnny" acted out in song, all held on an improvised stage with candles as footlights.

Following the entertainment was group singing of Gay Nineties and Sig Chi sorority songs.

The party ended with three actives in black cloaks reciting in bass voices a dirge called "If You Don't Go Sig Chi."

Phi Delt

A barn, a Mexican theme and mock bull fighting were features of the Phi Delt rush party Saturday.

The Mexican fiesta started with a humorous broadcast of a bull fight with the rushees providing the sound effects. Other entertainment included dressing a dummy called Pedro. Rushees were divided into groups and the group which dressed the dummy most completely won the prize.

Concluding the program was roping the bulls, with actives as the bulls and rushees as gauchos.

Footlongs with chili, potato chips and cakes followed "La Pinita" in which the rushees broke bags and were showered with candies.

Mexican songs ended the party.

Two weeks of late rushing due

Girls who missed the sorority rushing boat, will still be sought after in the two weeks of late rushing.

Tables for signing rushees will be in the halls Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1. Invitations will be mailed Oct. 3 and rushing will last from the fourth to the sixteenth.

Preference day for late sorority rushing will be Oct. 18.

Frat men of OU are on the prowl—for more men.

Interfraternity rushing started Monday with a smoker in the faculty club room as the first social function of the frats. On second floor during the smoker each frat had a room to welcome the rushees.

Formal affairs for the pledges to be will start this evening with Theta's party. Thursday, Beta Tau Kappa will welcome the rushees; Friday Phi Sigs will hold their party and Saturday the Alpha Sigs will wind up rushing.

Preference day for the rushees is scheduled Oct. 27.

Papooses slap Midland B, 43-0

Wiren plunges for two scores

Coach Don Pflasterer's Papooses christened the local grid scene Tuesday, Sept. 14, with a 43 to 0 romp past Midland B on the west Dodge field.

With John Wiren, Larry Christensen, Vern Shires, and Gene Cheley sparking the attack, the Papooses rolled for three scores in the first half and four in the second.

The game was less than two minutes old when Christensen tossed a pass from midfield to Bud Gibbons which covered 38 yards to the 12. But Gibbons in an attempted lateral fumbled and Midland's Gleason recovered on the Warrior eight.

Larson's punt on first down was partially blocked and Rich Maher, Papoose center, took the ball on the 22 and loped to the six. Lortelle Alfred then scored on a reverse down the left side line. Barritt's boot for extra point was good.

Christensen was also instrumental in the next drive as he passed and ran for gains to the Warrior 18. He then passed to Kluza on the 15 and Jerry went into the end zone standing up. Epperson's try for point was wide.

A Christensen to Gibbons pass which covered 38 yards scored the seventh touchdown for the Papooses. Another Christensen-Gibbons pass carried 25 yards to the one with a minute left. Wiren plunged for the final tally. Try for point was low.
